

Allison Sickle

A Friendly Face for Your Family Immigration Needs

Allison Sickle supports the firm's removal defensive and family immigration practice area. She has practiced immigration law for approximately seven years. Throughout her legal career, Allison has worked in multiple settings—including for the U.S. Government, law firms, and a nonprofit organization. She began her legal career with the Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR) where she worked for more than five years. As an Attorney Advisor with EOIR, Allison advised immigration judges in detained and non-detained courts on complex issues arising under immigration law. Prior to joining Weinstock, Allison was a Senior Attorney with Kids in Need of Defense (KIND), where she provided trauma-informed representation primarily to unaccompanied minors pursuing immigration benefits and mentored pro bono attorneys working on immigration cases.

A Dedicated Professional Passionate about Her Clients

Allison is committed to understanding the nuances of each case and to helping her clients navigate difficult situations. She understands that no two cases are alike and guides her clients with expertise, wisdom, and compassion on their path to legal immigration. Living in a rural subsistence farming community in Central America for two years, Allison has witnessed firsthand the conditions many immigrants flee in search of refuge in the United States or to pursue the American dream. She enjoys learning languages and about different cultures. Allison advocates to keep families united, to ensure her clients' safety in the United States, and for immigration benefits of which they are deserving.
